BOTARIANS MAKE MOVE TO

HELP HOUSING SITUATION That Norwich is decidedly in need o That Norwich is decidedly in need of better housing facilities and that the Rotary club is out to do all it can to get back of a plan to promote the building of houses was shown at the weekly noonday lunch held at the Wauregan house Weilnesday. James L. Case, T. C. Murphy, Charles R. Butts, L. M. Young, E. O. Rodier, Richard L. Tarrent, Shepard B. Palmer and Arthur M. Thompson all expressed their opinions on the matter and offered suggestions that might solve the problem for Norwich.

Mr. Case was the first uppeled after

Mr. Case was the first speaker after the luncheon and called attention to how Norwich a few years ago had a surplu-of vacant houses but that new it was of vacant houses but that new it was different, every available rent having been taken. No city can grow faster that the growth of the homes. Mr. Case said that he did not believe that Norwich would stand still, we must either go forward or we will fall backward. To go forward we must have more home to accommodate the people that come to Norwich with new industries and unless we have homes for new industries they will ot come here.

Mr. Case then introduced T. C. Must

Mr. Case then introduced T. C. Mur. Sir. Case then introduced T. C. Murphy, who spoke to the meeting as a cuizen. Mr. Murphy said that Norwich had the same problem confronting it as many other cities. When we look at the building permits issued by the fire marshal during the past ten years we see how little building of few homes has been done. It is up to the people of Norwich to build haves. done. It is up to the people of Norwich to build homes. But why don't they build? The banks are as liberal as the law allows and any deserving person in hardly ever refused a first mortgage loan. I suggest that the manufacturers pay their pro rata share in the construction of new homes, this will not only give their own employes a place to live but will release other houses for people coming to our city. Transportation is another thing that makes a city. people coming to our city. Transportation is another thing that makes a city. The legislators should bear this in mind and help keep the trolleys running by acts that will give them more funds. Cities should not compel trolley companies to stand part of the expense or improving highways. To return to the housing problem there are many large houses in Norwich that could be made into apartment houses and I suggest that this be done.

Richard I. Tarrant, speaking as a real estate broker, spoke of the scarcity of rents in the city. He said that if the brokers depended on the renting of the houses they would go out of business. Mr. Tarrant advised that anyone with spare capital should invest it in apartment houses as the returns were never greater. Land is chean and any kind of an apartment house would be a paying venture.

DISCUSS DAMAGE DONE TO WATERSHEDS OF CITY

largely to the advance in wages as the man wants a better home as his income increases. Why don't people build can be answered by saying that it is easier to get equally large returns on money invested in another way without as much trouble. The cost of materials is a thing that prevents building. Mr. Palmer thought that an increase in the rental rates in this city would induce more people to build and he thought that there should be a revaluation of property.

L. M. Young from the standpoint of a builder, said that a propaganda of fair mains is the setting of the date and 'k few other minor arrangements. It has been proposed that the processed of this per processed of this few other minor arrangements. It has been proposed that the proceeds of this of the lack of building material.

Arthur M. Thompson, architect, suggested that a careful survey of the city be made to ascertain where the most serious shortage occurs and then to locate a plot and build. Not houses of the same construction but houses of the same construction but houses of an ingrepaired in the Thames Square gardividual type. These bouses should be well build and well planned. A person in a house that pleases him will remain in your city and be a happy citizen.
